Welcome to the packed second issue of 2021 of the 'Experts in MS' newsletter.

There's a lot to share this issue, including exciting news about our new dedicated professionals' forum; a webinar to support the prescribing of Sativex; and our new online FACETS facilitators' course.

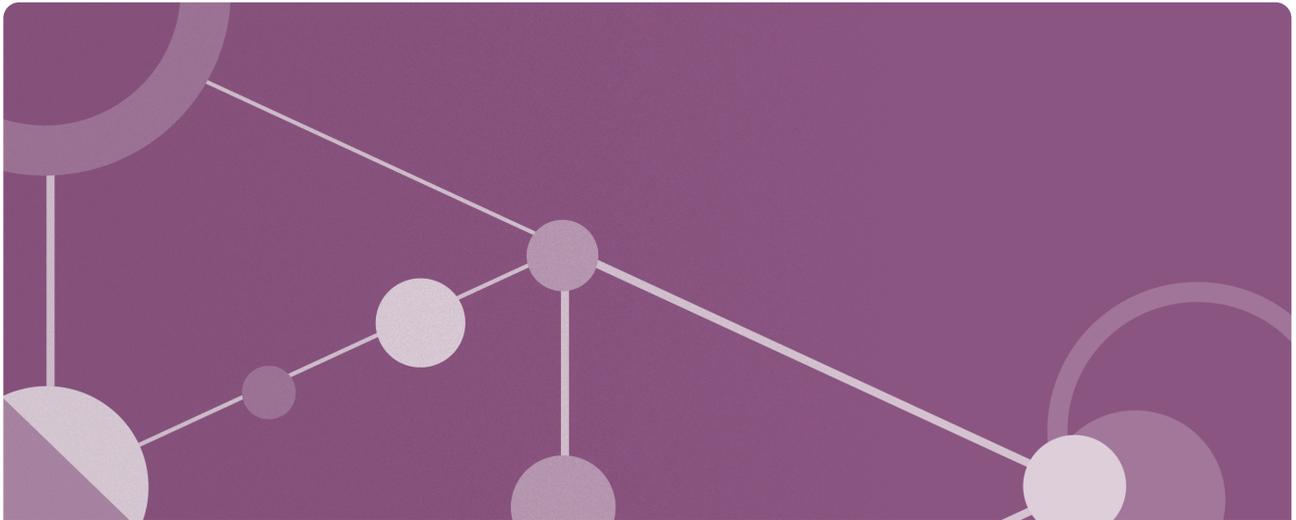

Join our Experts in MS forum

We've launched a new version of our forum, with a private space dedicated to professionals where you can share ideas, ask for advice and get support from one another. It's a safe space to let everyone know what you're doing or get ideas from others to solve problems.

Sign up to the forum and let us know your email address at professionalnetwork@mssociety.org.uk so we can add you to the Experts in MS topic area.

FACETS facilitators' training course

Our facilitators training course on FACETS is back up and running. We are running two courses this year on Zoom. One on June 22 and the other on October 12. The course will equip Health & Social care professionals to deliver FACETS, a six-week, group-based, fatigue management programme, online or face to face and enable participants to support people with MS to manage their MS related fatigue more effectively.

Sign up to the FACETS training course today.

Fatigue Management Pathway Online Survey

A meta-analysis published last month compared the effectiveness of different types of therapy for MS fatigue, including exercise and behavioural therapies, alone or in combination. There is strongest evidence for Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT) in the management of fatigue in MS, but overall, there is a lack of high-quality evidence.

Researchers at King's College and the UK MS Register are gathering information on what already exists to help people with MS manage fatigue. They want to design new interventions that will work with and enhance what already exists and that's why we need to hear from you.

Please spare 10-15 minutes to share information on the fatigue support available in your area.
